

Maryland Access Point (“MAP”)

Aging and Disability Resource Centers (ADRC), known locally as Maryland Access Point (MAP), were established in 2003. MAPs are administered by the Maryland Department of Aging, in collaboration with the Maryland Departments of Health and Mental Hygiene, Disabilities, Human Resources and the Governor’s Office for the Deaf and Hard of Hearing. The ADRC initiative is sponsored by the federal Administration for Community Living, the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services and the Department of Veterans Affairs, and involves a national network operating in 54 states and territories.

MAP is the designated single entry point for individuals seeking long term Medicaid support services under Maryland’s Balancing Incentive Program (BIP) the purpose of which is to create infrastructure and progress to shift the balance on long term services from institutional to community settings. BIP will result in an additional $106 million in federal funding to support community based services. The MAP sites provide individual, in person counseling to individuals who are in nursing homes and who indicate a desire to move back to the community through the Money Follows the Person Program (MFP) and other state and federal referral programs.

Maryland has twenty MAP sites providing statewide direct telephone and in person assistance for consumers seeking information, referral and program support for long term services. In most cases, the Area Agency on Aging is the lead organization in the MAP structure. MAP partners include local health and social services departments, Centers for Independent Living, behavioral health agencies and other organizations through which people seek assistance.

The MAP program also provides an online, searchable resource directory to serve the public and professionals in identifying, connecting and accessing private and public resources: www.marylandaccesspoint.info. Individuals can use the website to directly find and contact service providers or they can find an appropriate agency in their local area to contact for counseling and assistance.

Over the next three years, MAP sites will be expanded to:

- serve both older adults and individuals with disabilities;
- provide Options Counseling – a person-centered approach to assisting individuals in planning their long-term care needs;
- streamline eligibility determinations;
- increase access to lower cost community-based alternatives that can help avoid institutional care;
- simplify operational infrastructures at the State and local levels by creating clear paths to services and referrals; and,
- provide sustainable funding sources to local sites.
